Official Predictions are flying

Contributed by Gary Ramey
Saturday, 03 August 2013

Don't tell Big Dave my article is two days overdue. Just like many of the Dolphins Rookies my head has been swimming in work the last two weeks. The big difference is I should still have a job at the end of August and many of the young players on the Dolphins won't. Tomorrow's HOF Game is here. Both teams will be without key players but the significance of tomorrow's game is it is someone else you're laying the wood too. I remember in high school we would have May and early July Camps where we hit each other. But in early August we started to scrimmage other teams. I think the hitting was just a little more intense on both sides of the ball.

With that said, the things to look for are young standouts tomorrow. Who will deliver the one hit that causes the entire crowd to moan with pain? Which rookie or young player will graduate tomorrow in the eyes of his teammates? Who will catch the coaches eye .... both good and bad? Miami's Defense is sure getting good press...willl they live up to it? Miami's injured offense, scrambled OL...how will they play when the lights and cameras are on?

I don't know about you, but I'm excited just to sit in front of the tube and watch a real NFL game. I can't wait! There will be surprises and disappointments and that is the saga that is the NFL.

Cheers, and oh yeah....Go Tanny Go

GD2