

The Hen in the Desert....Fried!!!

Contributed by The Hen
Tuesday, 16 September 2008

Man, I guess I'll start this off by thanking all the Arizona Cardinals fans for the warm hospitality they gave us over the weekend up in Glendale and the surrounding areas. The feeling for them was "we've been there, it will get better". From the hotel staff where we stayed, to the fans as we were leaving the stadium. Once again, Arizona showed great class. It's great place to go see a game. We had a blast. If only the outcome of Sunday's game could have been better. As for the game... Well, the pre-game was cool. Daughtry performed some of his top hits and sang the national anthem before kickoff. I'll be honest, I thought that was the highlight of the game for Dolphins fans whether you like Daughtry or not. Coin-toss, Dolphins lose the toss and I guess if you believe in omens, that was a bad one because after that it just got worse. We had a the best HD view of the game and it was not pretty. The offense right from the get go did not look in sync. The running game once again seem to fall apart after a few good stops by the Cardinals defense. Chad Pennington to be harshly honest looked really bad. Some over throws that should have been completed, weren't. Looking at it live I can tell you. He wasn't even in the same zip code at times. The Defense once again seems to like to give up the big play early. This was the m.o. of last years team. Lets get down early and some how fight back in the end. Penalties again, in critical times in game, seem to really, really hurt a Defense that can't stop an Offense and a Offense that can't get ten yards. Much less 15 or 20... The Dolphins were handed a nice old fashion butt woopen. And now, it's off to face Wes Welker and oh ya...and a 6-4 WR by the name of Randy Moss. Well, let me let you guys go now as I have to go wash off the basting... The Hen Very cool halftime performance USMC Silent Drill Platoon youtube